A BRIEF HISTORY

Ever since 1605 the people of Bridgwater (Somerset) have been celebrating the failure of the Gunpowder Plot in a unique and spectacular way.

For many years the celebrations centred around a massive bonfire which was sited in the centre of town. By the mid 19th century the event was becoming established as a parade with townsfolk in colourful costumes travelling to the bonfire on decorated wagons and hay carts.

The first officially organised parade took place in 1881 when the Bridgwater Guy Fawkes Carnival Committee was formed. New road surfaces laid in 1924 caused the cessation of the bonfire as the tarmacadam proved unable to cope with the intense heat.

The parade however continued to grow and now, in the 21st century, regularly attracts an audience of 100,000 who come to see an enthralling display of light, sound and movement in a two hour long procession containing over 120 entries.

The paraffin lamps which illuminated the entries in the early parades have long since been replaced by electric lamps. Thousands of them. One entry alone may have 30,000 lights requiring a generator capable of producing a megawatt of electricity to bring them to life.

The carts themselves are massive. The largest being over 30 metres long, 5 metres high and 3 metres wide. Thousands of hours of work goes into their construction by members of carnival clubs who give their time freely to produce entries which amaze and mesmerise the many spectators who travel to see this carnival, which has no equal in the world.

During the carnival parade spectators are asked to contribute to a street collection, and last year over £21,000 was raised and shared between local charities and Bridgwater Carnival.

In 2007 the Bridgwater Carnival organisation became a registered charity.

MEDIA COVERAGE

TELEVISION

Local radio stations always play a massive role prior to the event carrying regular news items and general promotional packages.

CARNIVAL EVENTS

CARNIVAL CONCERTS

Held annually since 1883. The concerts are staged at the Town Hall, Bridgwater, during the first two weeks in October.

This four hour long show annually attracts a sell out audience of 5,000 and includes a cast of over 600 performers from the 13 local Bridgwater carnival clubs, dancing troupes and vocalists.

GRAND FIREWORK DISPLAY

The Bridgwater Carnival celebrations always start with a big bang with a glittering grand firework display the night before carnival day. This free curtain raiser event takes place at St Matthew's Field, Bridgwater, and attracts hundreds of people from in and around the Sedgemoor area.

CARNIVAL DAY

From 10:00am onwards, a whole host of street entertainment provides a fitting build up to the big parade. With help from the Arts Council of England, the entertainment in the day includes marching bands, samba bands, live music, street entertainers and children's parades featuring local primary and secondary school children.

CARNIVAL PARADE

Ever since 1605 the town of Bridgwater has celebrated Guy Fawkes's failure to blow up the Houses of Parliament, and the spectacular Bridgwater Guy Fawkes Carnival has gradually evolved from these initial celebrations over the centuries. Nowadays the grand procession takes over two hours to pass any one spot on the two mile route.

SQUIBBING DISPLAY

Bridgwater squibs were originally homemade fireworks which were ignited around the bonfire, throughout the carnival celebrations. Despite the demise of the bonfire in 1924, this centuries-old tradition has been retained although the squibs are now manufactured professionally. Nowadays, immediately after the parade has finished, over 150 squibbers line the High Street and ignite their squibs which are then held above their heads on specially made coshes in front of an audience of thousands.
